

MARTINEZ CREATIVE MANAGEMENT

I have known Franklin Porter since 2000 when he was working for Versace in Montreal. I was really taken by this extremely charismatic young man whose face, I felt belonged on television. Not necessarily as an actor, but as a fashion stylist a trendsetter. He oozed elegance, charm and had an eye for picking out pieces and styling them on the right person. It was not long before he had he amassed his own collection of vintage clothing and accessories called Panache in 2004.

Very quickly local and international celebrities were drawn to his wonderful taste and his ability to style each individual in a unique way. His knowledge of 20's to 80's vintage fashion is quite impressive but what strikes me the most about Franklin Porter is his ability to really dress a person for who they are; for them to shine as individuals according to their personalities and physical types.

I see Franklin Porter exporting his talent outside of Canada to ladies in need of glamour and of too often lost individuality. I also foresee his own television show so that the rest of the population can benefit from Franklin Porter's immaculate sense of style.
